

* Brook Trail has some very steep sections. Guests w/ heart conditions need to be cautious.

* Sugar Bush Trail passes through an old Sugar Maple orchard. Watch out for the bear carving on this trail...

* Brook and Velvet Rocks trails both have colonies of an uncommon plant called Indian Cucumber Root.

Velvet Rocks and Brook trails both have very sensitive wetland areas. Please stay on the trails and step on stones with moss already knocked off! Do NOT wade into the wetland areas - whether there is water in the "pools" or not. These are called Vernal Pools and are extremely sensitive - home to threatened amphibian and plant species. Our paths go through these areas in order to share this special habitat with you, but we implore you to respect the fragility of the area so that others may also experience a unique aspect of New Hampshire woodland.

It is okay to wade and play in this brook

There are over 7 miles of hiking trails for your enjoyment. They are rough and steep in sections. Wear appropriate footwear!
 * If "nature calls," please be courteous and step off of the trail - bury any refuse!!
 * Do NOT stray past orange ribbon/paint - this marks our property line

It is okay to wade and play in the brook indicated to the right of this box.
